1. Background information

The Commission has allowed Member States to launch COVID-19 related ad-hoc queries with a deadline of 7 days (which is quite short considering the circumstances when most of the staff of the immigration services are working from home). Since the beginning of the COVID-19 crisis, Member States have used the EMN to collect information on several topics. Additionally, other organizations are gathering information as well, mainly asylum (EASO) and borders (Frontex).

EMN considers that it is necessary to obtain an updated overview of measures with regard to acquisition of citizenship. For this purpose, the EMN, on the initiative of the Netherlands and Luxembourg will launch two ad-hoc queries to provide quick, short, objective and reliable information on these issues. This second ad-hoc query is aimed at obtaining information on the overarching measures by Member States in response to the COVID-19 pandemic in the field of the acquisition of citizenship.

The EMN would like Member States to answers these questions within a deadline of 7 days and thus provide their replies by Friday 17 April. On Monday 20 April compilations will be produced. Member States are then asked to update this information on a weekly basis. The EMN really appreciates your contribution and comprehension during these difficult times.

The National Security Council decided that public administrations should continue to carry out their essential missions, which include processing nationality applications, taking care to maintain physical distance and/or by stimulating telework. Administrations must inform the public of the possibilities of obtaining documents and information via alternative means (online). The concrete organisation of the municipal services belongs to the cities and municipalities and to the supervisory authority (opening hours, if work is done (only) by appointment, determining the measures taken to respect physical distance. etc.). Given the necessary capacity of our administrations to guarantee the continuity of their service to citizens, and according to the procedures which have just been specified, it has not been considered useful to adopt specific provisions in matters of application for nationality, in execution of the law of 27 March 2020 empowering the King to take measures to combat the spread of the "COVID19 virus". 2. In this regard, the Royal Decree of April 28, 2020 prolonged the measures taken relating to oral hearings and the written procedure. 	EMN NCP Norway	Yes	1. April 20, 2020 The Police stations across the country will be slowly reopening their services to the public, but only certain services will be in operation and it will vary from station to station. This applies to reports of serious crime, issuance of passports and treatment of immigrant and residence cases. It is not possible to attend a police station without an appointment. All service centres for foreign workers (SUA) remain closed until further notice. https://www.politiet.no/en/services/residence-permits-and-protection/ [March 12, 2020]: In Norway, the Norwegian Directorate of Immigration (UDI) is responsible for processing immigration and residency services. But it's the Police who administer the in-person appointments required for many services. All appointments with the police as well as to the service centres for foreign workers were automatically cancelled for more than a month after the lockdown was decided. Residence permits and protection – Police stations and service centres closed. The police immigration offices across the country were closed due to the corona virus situation. If an applicant had booked an appointment with the police before 14 April regarding an application for residency, citizenship or EEA registration, his/her appointment would regrettably have been cancelled. At the time of closing it was not known when the service could re-open, or when it would be possible to make a new appointment. The public was advised to follow-up on the internet. https://www.politiet.no/en/services/residence-permits-and-protection/ [March 12, 2020]: Processing of new applications for foreign nationals seeking Norwegian citizenship were put on hold at UDI for anyone who had not previously delivered the required documents to the police authorities. The UDI continued to process applications (for which there is a backlog) where the documentation was completed. No other measures were taken regarding processing of new applications for citizenship. Please note that in January 2020 a fully electronic system was put in place to handle most citizenship applications, however, applicants are required to meet at a police station for the police to check and collect the documentation and that has not been possible after the Corona outbreak. Also it is necessary to conduct language and citizenship tests prior to granting citizenship and that has also been put on hold. 2. April 30, 2020

			So far there are no other plans in place for appeals. [March 17, 2020]: Prioritising cases In weeks following the Corona virus lockdown, the Norwegian Appeals Board will prioritise cases that can be decided by a board chair after case preparation by the secretariat. It has been decided that all board meetings and other hearings will be delayed. The postponement of board meetings does not mean that cases that would normally have been processed in a board hearing will be treated differently than before. Board meetings will be put on hold until further notice.
